To prevent early morning crimes; Provide security to morning walkers in parks, roads

Mysuru, Jan. 29 (RK&SR)- After a long gap of nine years, the Mysuru City Police re-launched 'Operation Shubhodaya' this morning to prevent crimes — particularly to deal with rising chain-snatching cases and to keep track on the movement of suspicious persons during wee hours in the city.

Police will patrol all parks and roads from 5.30 am to 8.30 am regularly in their jurisdictional limits besides checking movement of chain-snatchers, suspicious persons and bikers.

City Top Cop to act tough on rowdy-sheeters ahead of LS polls

Buoyed by the success of 'Operation Sunset' which was launched in Oct. 2009, City Police Commissioner K.T. Balakrishna, who took up the mantle a few days back, has re-started 'Operation Shubhodaya' to keep a tab on law and order maintenance, crime prevention and ensure safety of women, senior citizens who stroll in parks.

Under this drive, over 2,000 Police personnel drawn from 18 Civil Police Stations across city will rescue victims of accidents that might occur in the early mornings apart from creating a safe atmosphere for joggers.

was taken to the Max Hospital in Saket (an upmarket residential colony located in South Delhi district) by his wife, Leila Fernandes, earlier in the day, when doctors said that the veteran leader was already dead.

His son Sean Fernandes, who lives in New York, is expected back in a day or two, after which the funeral will take place, the sources said.

Public research for public good

Action relating to embarking upon any research programme, funded particularly by grants sourced to government, seems to be driven by the aim of getting the coveted doctorate degree, preferably from a University reputed in academic circles. The oft-heard lament about declining standards of research by both informed and not-so-informed that we occasionally come across in the newspapers of all hues and the fact, also published in the media, that India hosts the biggest number of graduates in science, put together, leaves one wondering about the country's relative position globally on counts of outcome and economic as well as scientific value of public research for public good. Even as India hosts national laboratories with infrastructure needed for research in virtually all branches of Science and also institutions for research in Humanities, funding for research as proportion of the nation's budget is considered unviable and grossly inadequate, a unanimous opinion of the fraternity in particular and academia in general.

Scientists of India who have moved out of the country to pursue research in myriad fields of science and humanities have made a mark by their star performance, earning accolades from their peers abroad. Focus on problems chosen for research in Western ambience and India's priorities has remained a bone of contention.

Both funding and facilities for research in Universities across the nation compare poorly with their counterparts in most countries of the West. Further, the competence of the faculty in the country's 900-odd Universities has come under the scanner, judged by regularly published reports based on global surveys that none of these Universities figure among the top 200 Universities of the world. Research projects in institutions in the management of government and those in industry sector provide a striking contrast in relevance of their objectives and also sense of urgency. Research fraternity of the nation seem to be more sinned against than sinning in public domain.

According to sources in the Centre for Technology, Innovation and Economic Research, while India's public investment in research is healthy, nearly 90 percent public research is done in autonomous R&D Laboratories. Creating adequate facilities for research in India's Universities and providing funds to meet the recurring expenses augur well for flow of talent for doing research and address the nation's public good in days ahead.

EDITOR'S BOTTOMLINE

Bhagawan Ramana Maharishi gives a brilliant exposition. The human ego is like an ocean, present right from birth until death. The individual 'I' is a part of this ocean, making you think 'I,I,I.' This 'I,I,I ...' is like a bubble on the surface of the ocean. This bubble is also water, a part of the ocean. When it bursts, it just merges into the totality of the water. Before forming, it was a part of the ocean. Then for a while, it existed as a bubble, still a part of the ocean. Upon disintegration, it again became one with the infinite ocean. Similarly, man springs forth from the superior power, then for a while he exists, thinking of himself as 'I,I,I —,' then one day he just disappears into that infinite ocean of divinity. — In Deccan Herald.

From 'Ugly Duckling' to 'Swan'

Seoul: An 18-year-old boy after being insulted by a girl for looking ugly decided to turn himself from an 'Ugly duckling' to a 'Swan' using makeup.

In the summer after graduating from high-school, the teenager decided he didn't want to suffer the same treatment in college, so he told himself that he had to make some drastic changes. He started dieting, bought some cooler clothes, and started watching Korean-style makeup tutorials online. He experienced with various concealers, foundation creams, and before long he noticed some incredible results.

To make himself look even more Korean, the boy swapped his geeky glasses for more fashionable ones, got his ears pierced, dyed his hair and adopted a cooler hairdo. When he posted photos of his new self on social media, his high-school colleagues were shocked, and one girl said "You finally changed from an ugly duckling into a swan".

Girls as boys to keep father's barbershop afloat

Banwari Tola (UP): Two teenage sisters from Banwari Tola, in Uttar Pradesh disguised themselves as boys for four years in order to keep their father's barbershop open after he became ill. They were recently honored for their grit and determination after it was discovered that they were girls in disguise.

18-year-old Jyoti Kumari and her 16-year-old sister Neha, took over their father's barbershop in 2014 after he suffered paralytic attack that left him bedridden. At first, the barbershop was closed, but as the family savings evaporated, Jyoti and Neha reopened it and started running it themselves. But things didn't go well at first, as some men were skeptical about having girls shave their beards and trim their mustaches, while others treated them badly. So they started disguising themselves as men.

Build clean bus shelters that will last long

Sir,

Read the recent article "Shelters miss the bus" in SOM dated Jan. 19. The reason for the state of these shelters is that they are built with materials that can be easily vandalised. Hence, it is the duty of citizens to give ideas to Mysuru City Corporation (MCC) so that we can have great bus stops.

I would like to suggest that closed shelters like the one in front of V.V. Mohalla Post Office and on SJCE Road built with cement and bricks are the best for the city. The shelters interior up to 3 ft. including the slab to sit on should be built with granamite tiles (it is not granite) as they can resist wear and tear and are meant for areas with high movement. And at the same time they look good aesthetically. They are easy to clean if MCC buys Tata ace water trucks fitted with pressure washers to clean them.

What the City Corporation has to do:

Tie up with cement companies to build the shelters with ten-year advertising rights on the outer walls of the bus stop like done in Vontikoppal Club shelter (it is an open bus stop), provided they paint the bus stop once every year before Swachh Survekshan.

The inner walls can be used for ads by companies, thus generating revenue for MCC for upkeep of the shelters.

We should remember that all the hi-tech shelters are meant for countries where people don't vandalise public property. Hence I would request the MCC to consider this idea and build sturdy shelters in the future.

Petty shop with common wall to the shelter:

Next to the bus shelter a small (5ft x 5ft) petty shop (selling ladies items only, so men don't come and stand there) with common wall should be built which should be given to widows from poor background without any rent and on condition that only she can run the shop and in return she is responsible for upkeep of the shelter.

Upset over some Congressmen's remarks

HDK threatens to quit

Bengaluru, Jan.29- The strained relations between the ruling coalition partners hit a new low on Monday with Chief Minister H.D. Kumaraswamy (HDK) offering to resign.

Upset over Congress MLAs going public with their complaints against his Government, Kumaraswamy warned the Congress against 'Crossing the line.'

"If my style of functioning is not acceptable to anybody, I am ready to quit. I do not want to continue and stick on to the chair," he said while putting the onus on the Congress leadership to resolve issues.

Cautioning the Congress, Kumaraswamy asked the party leaders to control their MLAs.

CM Kumaraswamy

Reacting to the allegations of Yeshwanthpur Congress MLA, S.T. Somashekar, who recently took charge as BDA Chairman, that infrastructure development works in Bengaluru has slowed down under the Coalition Government, Kumaraswamy claimed that his Government had allotted Rs.1 lakh crore to various projects in Bengaluru like the peripheral Ring Road, Suburban Rail and elevated corridor. Following Kumaraswamy's 'threat', embarrassed Congress leaders went into damage control and decided to issue notice to Somashekar seeking his explanation.

Kumaraswamy was also said to be agitated over a Cabinet Minister publicly declaring on Sunday that for him and Congress MLAs, Siddaramaiah was still the Chief Minister.

KPCC President Dinesh Gundu Rao said that MLA Somashekar's statement is objectionable and unacceptable.

Observing that the MLA's remarks amounted to indiscipline, the KPCC Chief said that Somashekar, who is also the BDA Chairman, should not have given such a statement from a public platform.

Later in the day on Monday, Somashekar met Dinesh Gundu Rao and apologised for his remarks.

AICC General Secretary in charge of Karnataka K.C. Venugopal said that the party will not tolerate any indiscipline and the KPCC has been instructed to issue a show cause notice to Somashekar seeking a clarification on his controversial remarks.

However, by evening, the CM softened his stand and claimed there was no differences between the coalition partners.

Dr. Mruthyunjayappa Award Conferred

Mysuru, Jan.29 (SPN&DM)- Well-known Doctor, Dr. B. Ramana Rao, Founder of Grameena Aushadhalaya at T. Begur near Bengaluru, was conferred 'Dr. C.N. Mruthyunjayappa Adarsha Vaidya Seva Award' at a programme jointly organised by the city unit of Akhila Bharata Sharana Sahitya Parishat and Mysuru Kadali Mahila Vedike at Rajendra Bhavan in JSS Hospital premises here yesterday.

Speaking after receiving the award, Dr. Ramana Rao stressed on the need for young doctors to serve in rural areas and thus enhance their professional skills.

Noting that treating poor patients from rural areas will give greater scope for young doctors to hone their skills and methodology of treatment, he underlined the need for doctors to serve in rural areas as much time as possible.

Stating that he established Grameena Aushadhalaya at T. Begur 44 years ago and has continued to treat poor patients from rural communities, he said that this award will make him more responsible towards the weaker sections of the society.

Regretting that many rural areas of the country have been deprived of medical facilities, he reiterated that young doctors should shape their careers by serving in rural areas.

Maintaining that he did not have much knowledge about the services of Dr. C.N. Mruthyunjayappa (CNM) until he received the award instituted in his (CNM) name, Dr. Ramana Rao wondered whether there were doctors of his (CNM) kind even in this era.

Former Minister C.H. Vijayanshankar, in his address, recalled the invaluable services rendered by C.N. Mruthyunjayappa as a doctor. Opining that more awards be given in Dr. C.N. Mruthyunjayappa's name to achievers from different fields, apart from medical profession, Vijayanshankar said that Dr.CNM was a multi-talented personality who always thought of serving the poor through medical services, education and environment conservation. He also recalled that Dr. CNM couple had sought votes on his behalf in H.D. Kote Assembly segment when he contested the 2004 Lok Sabha elections from Mysuru seat as the BJP candidate.

Suttur Seer Sri Shivarathri Deshikendra Swamiji graced the occasion. Sudha Mruthyunjayappa, Sharana Sahitya Parishat District President G.R. Parameshwarappa, Kadali Mahila Vedike Jaya Gowda and others were present.

Dr. B. Ramana Rao, who was conferred Dr. Mruthyunjayappa Award yesterday, is seen with the dignitaries.

Tanzania student arrested for ATM card skimming

Hassan, Jan.29 (KS)- Holenarasipur Police have arrested a Tanzania student for withdrawing money from ATM kiosks skimming debit cards.

Andrew Renatas Sang

Card skimming is a type of credit card theft, using a small device to steal card information in an otherwise legitimate credit or debit card transaction. The arrested student is identified as 28-year-old Andrew Renatas Sang, a B.Com student at a private college in Mysuru and was residing in Vijayanagar 3rd Stage in Mysuru after taking the house on lease. The Police have seized skimming equipment worth about Rs.7.5 lakh from him.

Sang had come to India in 2014 for studies and gained knowledge about skimming by watching videos and had procured skimming equipment from China online. For the first time, Sang successfully withdrew Rs.1.30 lakh, using skimming technology, from Canara Bank branch in Mysuru, two months back.

According to Superintendent of Police A.N. Point of VIEW

T.J.S. George

Small men in big chairs are usually dangerous. It isn't just the Napoleon Complex: the tendency among short men to be overly assertive to make up for their lack of height. A politician who occupies a chair too big for him gets not only overly assertive but also contemptuous of others and their rights. The result is a dictator complex, the feeling that whatever they do is right.

Consider the case of Kishorechandra Wangkhem, a television journalist in Manipur. One fine night in November he was arrested for criticising Chief Minister N. Biren Singh and Prime Minister Modi. The charge was sedition. A Magistrate found no sedition in the remarks the journalist made and released him on bail. Within two days he was jailed under NSA which is beyond judicial review.

What exactly was the sedition Wangkhem committed? His style was typical Manipuri TV style, strong words strongly used, — "street language," as the Chief Judicial Magistrate put it while allowing bail. The substance was something else. He objected to the CM weaving the Rani of Jhansi's struggle against the British into Manipur's freedom struggle. "When you praise the Rani of Jhansi as a freedom fighter covering Manipur your knowledge is nill and an insult to the freedom fighters of Manipur", he said.

A historically accurate stance. But CM Biren Singh condemned it as "prejudicial to the security of the State". At worst it was prejudicial to the security of the Chief Minister. Which makes this as a classic case of the Louis XIV mentality of "I-am-the-State." Which should not surprise those who look into the story of N. Biren Singh. This guy was a footballer who used that skill to get into the Border Security Force. But he wanted a political role and power, so he quit and started a publication of his own, using journalism for political ends. Like many politicians, he too developed an "ideological" affinity to whoever was in power. That helped him become a Minister in a Congress government in 2003. When the pendulum swung in favour of the BJP Biren Singh became a BJP man. Mission accomplished.

Power gave him new insights. Addressing a conference of doctors, he outlined a vision no one else had done so far. "Be it doctors or politicians. We are here to serve the people. We are not here to take your abuses. If you think that common people can say anything to those in power, no you can't. If somebody in power has done something wrong, you can go to the Court. But you don't have the right to abuse anyone publicly."

Criticism is not abuse — and criticism is one of the pillars of democracy. If criticism is taken as abuse and penalised, many of India's intellectuals, academics, editorial writers and columnists will be in jail under NSA. However a closer examination shows that Biren Singh, in his BJP avatar, has merely learned the techniques of currying favour with his bosses. At a fair in Porbunder in Gujarat in March last year, he said: "During the time of Lord Krishna, there was no separate Arunachal Pradesh or Assam or Manipur. The entire northeast was one entity. Arunachal, Manipur and Nagaland are bordering China. Lord Krishna made them part of India during his time".This is a determined man. History and geography must bend to his will.

Is this a pattern among BJP leaders? At a meeting addressed by Maharashtra Minister Vinod Tawde recently, a student asked a question with his tape recorder on. The Minister asked him to turn off the recorder and the student wanted to know why. The Minister's response was to ask his security men to arrest the student and confiscate his recorder. The same arrogance of power made V.K. Singh, known variously as the Sanghi General and the foot-in-mouth mantri, to proclaim that "people making accusations over Rafale aircraft deal are illiterate."

Perhaps small men imagine that they can frighten critics away. The media watchdog, Reporters Without Borders, found India was the fifth deadliest place for a journalist. The All Manipur Working Journalists Union disowned journalist Wangkhem. For them discretion was the better part of valour. However, the Students' Union found the courage to support Wangkhem while the Indian Journalists' Union said that the freedom of expression included the right to offend. Or course it does. But what do you do when a politician says that the right to rule includes the right to arrest critics and to call them illiterate. Either politicians win and others lose or others lose and politicians win.

'Kuvempu-Tejaswi Meluku' event held at Udayaravi

Mysuru, Jan.29 (YDS&US)- Karnataka Sahitya Academy and District Chakora Vedike together had organised a programme titled 'Kuvempu-Tejaswi Meluku' at Kuvempu's house 'Udayaravi' in V.V. Mohalla here on Sunday.

Those who had assembled at the literary meet had an enjoyable and thought-provoking discussion on the works of eminent poet laureate Kuvempu and his son late Poornachandra Tejaswi. The discussion was followed by rendition of poems of Kuvempu by H.M. Ravanikar, Gururaj, L. Shobha Anand, T.N. Srividya Phaniraj, Prithvi S. Bharadwaj and Parimala Vishwanath.

Kuvempu's daughter Tarini, going nostalgic, recalled that her brother Poornachandra Tejaswi and Kuvempu shared common thoughts adding that Tejaswi practised what Kuvempu preached.

She contended that her father always batted for simple marriage and added that Tejaswi got married on a much simpler note.

She recalled that Kuvempu was always against superstition and beliefs supporting that.

She recalled that her father used to receive death threats as he gained influence and popularity which made family members to accompany him on evening strolls. She added that Tejaswi used to receive similar death threats after the demise of his father.

Speaking on the occasion, Kuvempu's son-in-law Dr. Chidananda Gowda said that Kuvempu born in a forest area came to a city and settled down while Tejaswi born in city developed a coffee plantation in Mudigere and settled down there amid nature's beauty.

Critic Dr. R. Chalapathy said that Tejaswi never blamed English for problems faced by Kannada. Similarly, Kuvempu asked people not to blame someone else for their ignorance which should be shot down first, he said.

The participants discussed on the relative prowess in literature of Kuvempu and Tejaswi.

George Fernandes passes away

A fire-brand and hard-working Fernandes, only 37 then, campaigned tirelessly, covering large swathes of the Constituency with his workers. And when the results were declared, he unseated the 'king' with 48.5 per cent of the votes.

Fernandes later joined the Janata Dal. He served as Railways Minister in the V.P. Singh government from 1989 to 1990. He was instrumental in setting up the Konkan Railway project, connecting Mangalore and Bombay.

In 1994, Fernandes formed the Samata Party, which later allied with the Bharatiya Janata Party. He was appointed convenor of the National Democratic Alliance (NDA) and served as the Defence Minister in the Atal Bihari Vajpayee government for two terms, between 1998 and 2004.

A veteran Parliamentarian, Fernandes was elected nine times to the Lok Sabha and was arrested during the Emergency.

George Fernandes and others were charged with smuggling dynamite in an alleged plot to blow up Railway tracks and government buildings in the Baroda Dynamite Case. He was still in prison when he won in Muzaffarpur in the 1977 general election.

Born in Mangalore on June 3, 1930, George Fernandes' term was eventful as it witnessed the Kargil War and Pokhran Test.

Champion of Democracy

President of India Ram Nath Kovind has grieved the death of former Defence Minister George Fernandes. "Distressed to learn of the passing of Shri George Fernandes, who served India in many capacities, including as Defence Minister. He epitomised simple living and high thinking. And was a champion of democracy, during the Emergency and beyond. We will all miss him," the President tweeted.

Fernandes

Tall political leader

Prime Minister Narendra Modi also praised George Fernandes for his contribution as a tall political leader and as Minister in India. "During his long years in public life, George Sahab never deviated from his political ideology. He resisted the Emergency tooth and nail," PM Modi tweeted. "...we remember most notably the fiery Trade Union Leader who fought for justice, the leader who could humble the mightiest of politicians at the hustings, a visionary Railway Minister and a great Defence Minister who made India safe and strong," PM Modi added.

Well-wisher of J&K people

Calling George Fernandes a well-wisher of the people of Jammu and Kashmir, former Chief Minister Omar Abdullah grieved the death of the ex-Defence Minister. "Rest in peace George Fernandes Sahib. You were a tireless crusader fighting for the voiceless, the marginalised and for those that needed someone in their corner. You called a spade a spade and did so unabashedly. You were always a friend and well-wisher of the people of J&K. Godspeed," Abdullah said on Twitter.

Artificial Intelligence a threat to Human Intelligence: Sadhguru

Ambale Subramanya

Rattehalli Ramappa

Mysuru, Jan.29- "Educational institutions should make a paradigm shift from information loading to exploring human intelligence," opined Sadhguru Jaggi Vasudev after unveiling the busts of Rajaseva Prasaktha Ambale Subramanya Iyer and Educationist Rattehalli Ramappa, pioneers of Mahajana Education Society (MES), in the premises of Mahajana High School and Mahajana PU College, Jayalakshmipuram, here recently.

Speaking on Artificial Intelligence and Human Intelligence, the Isha Foundation Founder, Jaggi Vasudev said, in the era of technology, man has become a slave to machine. He cited the excessive use of smart phones.

Recollecting his school days, Jaggi Vasudev said that he was left wondering if calculators could do all the calculation, why he was being tortured with math learning, sending the audience into peals of laughter.

He said probably he gained more outside the classes, saying emphasis should not be only on factual learning. These days information accumulation is considered equivalent to intelligence and therefore there is a greater thrust on data accumulation, assimilation and use. However, this kind of knowledge or scholarship is going to become defunct in near future. What will have a greater value and premium is human intelligence — the ability to handle human emotions. The choice to have the highest level of pleasantness is within oneself.

"Man's experiences should be the way he wants it to be. A human being cannot unfold oneself in an ambience of unpleasantness. As human beings we tend to suffer because of our enhanced memory and imagination. There is a tendency to live in the past or future and therefore suffer and make our lives miserable," he said.

B.S. Ravikumar, Governing Council Member, MES, spoke about the life and vision of the Founders of MES. Dr. R.N Ashok, grandson of Rattehalli Ramappa, shared the fond memories and the commitment towards the cause of education.

MES President R. Vasudeva Murthy presided. Hon. Secretary Dr. T. Vijayalakshmi Muralidhar welcomed. Vice-President T. Muralidhar Bhagavat proposed a vote of thanks.

The Police Officers concerned must hold review meetings, take stock of the crime rate and spell out strategies to curb crime. They must use advanced technology to detect crime and gather evidence so that the criminal does not go scot-free.

Principal District and Sessions Judge G. Basavaraja conducted hearing through video-conference from Mysuru Central Jail, where all the four accused — Immadi Mahadevaswamy, Ambika, Madesha and Doddaiah — have been lodged since their arrest in the case in December last.

Siddu loses cool, snatches mike from woman

T. Narasipur, Jan. 29- Former Chief Minister Siddharamaiah yesterday landed in a controversy when he engaged in a heated argument with a woman party worker and snatched the mike from her at an event at Gargeshwari in the taluk.

Siddharamaiah was taking part in the power sub-station inauguration programme at Gargeshwari when Jamal Ara, a former Taluk Panchayat President, thumped on the table in front of him while alleging that his MLA-son Dr. Yathindra, who represents Varuna Assembly, was not available to the villagers.

Even as Jamal Ara complained about the inaccessibility of Dr. Yathindra, Siddharamaiah lost his cool and shouted at her besides grabbing the mike.

Jamal Ara complained that officials were making the people run from pillar to post to get their family tree certificate or khata changed. When Siddharamaiah told that she should have approached the local MLA, Jamal Ara shot back saying that Varuna MLA was inaccessible, which made him furious.

Siddharamaiah's action triggered a controversy when visuals of the programme aired by TV channels began trending on social media.

The former CM's behaviour has drawn severe criticism from the Opposition BJP, which has demanded an apology from him.

BJP Mahila Morcha President Bharathi Shetty said that Siddharamaiah's words and body language were deplorable.

Alleging that the former CM pushed the woman and pulled her dupatta, Bharathi maintained that shouting at a woman and getting her to apologise is very painful. She has asked the National Women's Commission to take note of this incident.

Incident was accidental: Clarifies Siddharamaiah

Meanwhile, Siddharamaiah has clarified that the incident was accidental. Speaking to presspersons at Mysuru this morning, the former CM said he knew the woman in question, Jamal Ara, for the past 15 years and she was like his sister.

Maintaining that the incident was accidental and happened when he tried to stop the woman's long speech, the former CM said there was no ill-motive involved.

Accusing the BJP of trying to give a political colour to the row, Siddharamaiah said the BJP is making a big issue of it because it had no other issues to take on the coalition Government.

PROFILE

Vid. Aditya Prakash, born in Los Angeles, was musically inclined from a young age. His mother Viji Prakash is the Founder of Shakti Dance School of Bharatanatyam, and his sister Mythili Prakash is a well-known Bharatanatyam dancer. Musicians from India would frequently stay with his family when they visited Los Angles and as a result, he was heavily exposed to Karnatak music.

He began learning Karnatak vocal music at the age of eight and mridanga at the age of six. When he was 12, he performed a two-hour-long debut vocal performance. By 16, he started touring with Pandit Ravi Shankar. He credits Ravi Shankar with giving him the idea to pursue music as a full-time profession. From then onwards, Prakash began spending four to six months each year in Chennai and learnt Karnatak music from various gurus.

By spending adequate time in India, he familiarised himself with various musical forms of Indian classical music. He spent extensive time learning from leading vocalists such as P.S. Narayanaswami and Palai C.K. Ramachandran, and learnt mridanga from Neyveli Narayartan.

He has performed at prominent venues worldwide, including the Carnegie Hall, Disney Hall, Hollywood Bowl and Boston/ Chicago Symphony Halls. As a solo Karnatak vocalist, Prakash has been a regular performer both in India and North America. He has sung at all leading Indian venues such as the Music Academy (Chennai), Gayana Samaj (Bangalore), Ravi Shankar Performing Arts Centre (New Delhi), Shanmukhananda Sangeetha Sabha (Mumbai) among others.

Aneesh V. Bhat, a traditional vocalist hailing from Puttur, is a name to be reckoned with in the Karnatak classical field in all of Southern Karnataka. From the tender age of 9, he has taken to the stage boldly and developed his rendition style into a very divine, traditional form. Aneesh's music has been mentioned by many as very soulful and simplistic, coupled with rhythmic improvisations.

A 'B' graded artiste of All India Radio, he is presently working as a Karnatak music instructor at Shankar Mahadevan Academy as well as honing his nuances in Vidwat-level training of the percussion instrument, mridanga. Apart from being active through numerous performances and scholarships in music, Aneesh exceeds expectations in academics as well. He is currently pursuing Ph.D. in Civil Engineering (Construction Technology) and simultaneously working as an Assistant Professor in Canara Engineering College, Mangaluru.

He has won T.R. Krishnan Memorial Young Talent Award-2009; Gold Medal in classical music-2007; Best Concert Award; 'Gana-Laya-Gandharva' title; Fellowship from Karnataka Sangeetha Nrithya Academy among others. Audio CDs titled 'Sunada Vinodini' released by Lahari Audio is a series of Live Concert shows sung by Aneesh Bhat, one of the Founder-Members of Aarabhi Cultural Foundation. He has his own Aarabhi Music Academy which is an online teaching portal.

WORD OF THE DAY

Adjudicate

Pronunciation: Uh-JOO-dih-kayt.

Meaning: To settle judicially.
Origin: Adjudicate is one of several terms that give testimony to the influence of jus, the Latin word for "law," on our legal language. Adjudicate is from the Latin verb adjudicare, from judicare, meaning "to judge," which, in turn, traces to the Latin noun judex, meaning "judge." English has other judex words, such as judgment, judicial, judiciary, and prejudice. If we admit further evidence, we discover that the root of judex is jus. What's the verdict? Latin "law" words frequently preside in English-speaking courtrooms. In addition to the judex words, jury, justice, injury, and perjury are all ultimately from Latin jus.
Example: Certain land disputes in the court have still remained not adjudicated.

THE ODD WORD

Absquatulate

To leave somewhere abruptly.

PHRASE OF THE DAY

About face

Meaning: Change direction.

Origin: From the military command of the English Army - it is still used in the British Army today. The earliest citation that I can find is from Manoeuvres, or Practical observations on the Art of War, 1711, by the English soldier, Major William Young. Young explained the meaning of numerous commands, including:
To the Right Face! - Bring up the firelock, with a quick motion high before you, till your left hand comes even with your eye, with the fingers of your hand extended along the stock, just above the feather spring. The right foot to be brought close up to the left heel in this motion. To the Right About Face! - As before, coming to the Right About, instead of to the Right.
Example: In a stunning about-face, the career criminal turned his life around and got a legal job.
